

For the prevention and cure of
BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS
is recommended
JHN'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS.
THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons has been adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fever, will prove infallible preventive; and further, at the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases deemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly safe, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age. They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and will be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Loss of appetite Indigestion. Purity of blood Melancholy. Steric affection Gout in the stomach and weak sensations. Pains in the limbs and debility. Relaxations, etc.

Hamilton's Essence and Extract of Mustard.

A safe and effectual remedy for acute chronic rheumatism, gout, rheumatic pains, lumbago, numbness, white swellings, chilblains, sprains, bruises, pain in the face and neck, etc. etc.

An infallible remedy for corns, speedily removing them root and branch, without giving any pain.

The Genuine Persian Lotion.
So celebrated among the fashionable people of Europe, is an invaluable cosmetic, perfectly innocent and safe, free from corrosive and repellent minerals, basis of other lotions, and of unparalleled efficacy in removing blemishes from the face and skin, freckles, pimples, inflammatory redness, scurfs, tetter, ringworms, sunburns, prickly heat, &c.

Hahn's genuine Eye Water.
A sovereign remedy for all diseases of the eyes, whether the effect of naturalness or of accident.

REFLECTIONS ON THE WESTERN COUNTRY.

Mr. Printer.

After playing so much on conjecture, in the two preceding numbers, on the probable formation of the western country, its antiquities, &c. it may not here be amiss to dwell a short time on its present state and future prospects.

That tract of land lying between the Alleghany and Rocky mountains, altho' at present but partially settled by whites, is deemed, one day, to be the residence of uncounted millions. Having spoken, formerly, in description of Louisiana, of the more southern part, it will only remain now to treat of that which lies north of the junction of the Ohio and Mississippi. Here nature puts on a different aspect from that of the sickly regions of the south. In the place of that dull, monotonous sameness which characterizes the valley of the Mississippi and parts adjacent, the eye of the traveller is agreeably refreshed with a diversified scenery of hills and plains, wood-land and natural meadows—some of which latter extend many miles over. These are termed prairies, which name was given them by the first French settlers, and signifies meadows. They have been accounted for in various ways, and some, willing to cut short investigation, leave it all to the great first cause, by saying that it was as easy for nature to form prairies as woodland. Notwithstanding the ease of this manner of accounting, I conceive it may be explained in a more correct way; for we see them forming and growing up before our eyes almost every year, and can confidently assert that they are occasioned by fire. Suppose a piece of woodland, well covered with leaves, to be set fire to, in a dry time—the first year it will do no more than destroy the undergrowth, and make some impression on the outer bark of the timber. The second year the grass will have less impediment to its growth—when it dies in the fall, the Indians will find it obstructing the view of the game, and will fire it again; this, besides the new sprouts that may spring up, will effectually destroy the bark of the timber, and kill the trees; the third year's fire will take effect on the trees, already dried, and destroy them; &c. by succeeding fires, which will completely hinder any new timber from coming to perfection, whilst these continue to rage in autumn. On the other hand, exclude a piece of prairie from fire for one year, and you will find, first hazel bushes sprouting up, then saplings of another description; these giving way alternately to trees of a superior growth, till the whole plain is once more clothed with thick timber. We may take the Illinois territory as a kind of a middle standard here, between that of the east, where prairies are more scarce, and that of the west, where they generally abound. In this territory you find all the high dry land, destitute of timber, whilst the low, low lands, following the courses of the streams that are occasionally covered with water and naturally damp, are all covered with wood. Here the water obstructs the course of the fire, where it is considerably damp, and only gives it admittance occasionally, where it is particularly so. But, one phenomena occurs in this country which I must confess I cannot account for; that is, in the high and dry prairies you may always come to water by digging a few feet, and this by the natural exuding from the damp soil below, while in the wood-land which lies lower, and is damp on the top, you have to dig more than twice the distance before the bottom of the well is covered. In neither of the cases you come to a stream, except very accidentally; for regular sources of water in this country are very rare—the rivers and creeks being formed, principally from the draining of wet land and springs, which are more periodical than constant, except it be in some parts towards the east of the Ohio, or heads of the Mississippi or Missouri. Although as said before, the country is diversified with hills, &c. those crystal fountains and falling cataracts which beautify some of the eastern states, & give rise to many a dull foam, are here wanting, and should a poet chance to rise here in some future age, he must deck his muse with something which will appear new on Mount Parnassus. The howling of wolves, the croaking of frogs, the extensive and monotonous view of prairies and swamp may debt and epic poem with novelty, if not with beauty. But this kind of labor can be but the employ of a few, and the many will find much more advantage in cultivating the choicest land of heaven's gift; a land which will surely yield to the cultivator, and where industry will always meet with a reward.

Yet turning from the natural to the moral contemplation of the place, where blessings are liberally bestowed, that it will have its concomitant ills, doubtless—the land that produced Hamdon produced Cromwell; and the evils of life always keep pace with the good. We cannot expect one hundred years hence, when this fertile tract of country is covered with cities, that the people will be more happy than at present; but the posterity of the now industrious may reap the luxuries derived from the soil which their forefathers sought for as a comfort and prop for old age. High ideas of independence and self-sufficiency are as apt to spring up in nations as in individuals, as they arrive at the age of maturity, and it has not been an uncommon saying in some parts of the western country for some years back: "We can live independent of the eastern states; our natural and most convenient market is New Orleans, and Alleghany ought to be our boundary." Had this country been oppressed, as their eastern brethren were once oppressed by those across the Atlantic, no doubt they would have long since put in practice what they now only hold in theory. But fortunately the mercantile enterprise of the state of New York is about to put off this doleful partition to a later period. Not that I suppose the intention of the canal from Hudson to Lake Erie, was intended for anything else but a speculative scheme whereby to send merchandise to the west with more advantage—yet in doing this it will cement a bond of union more lasting than that of patriotism. I mean of self-interest; for while finding that they can make purchases more cheap in that quarter than at Orleans, their interest will be there, their hearts likewise.

A canal, on a large scale, connecting the aforesaid waters, may, by little expense, be made to connect the waters of the Lakes and those of the Mississippi; or at least a few additional canals, on a much less scale, will connect the waters of Erie to those of the Muskingum, Sciota, Miami, &c. Those of Michigan, with the Illinois and Wabash; those of Green Bay with the Wisconsin, or Wisconsin; and so on with all the waters of these two great streams. From lake superior easy communications could be made to the head waters of the Mississippi and the Lake of the Woods, so that with fewer canals than are common in some parts of the world, a vessel might start from New York; and go by an inland passage either to Hudson's Bay or New Orleans. The monied men of N. York, no doubt have sufficient insight into the certain result of their profits to induce them to perceive in this undertaking, which equally concerns the whole mercantile interest of the state, that has undertaken its execution.

ROYAL WEDDING.

From a London Paper, April 6.

On Thursday night the marriage of her royal highness the princess Elizabeth, third daughter of their majesties, with prince Philip Augustus Frederick, the hereditary prince of Hesse-Homburg, took place at the queen's palace. An introduction of his serene highness to her royal highness, took place near two years ago, and since that time a correspondence has been kept up, as the prince soon after left England; and we have the pleasure to say there is every prospect of the union being productive of the highest nuptial happiness, from the congeniality of their dispositions. The virtues and merits of the amiable bride are too well known to need any panegyric from us. The solemnization of the wedding having been finally agreed upon, cards of invitation were issued, nearly three weeks since to the foreign ambassadors and ministers, with their ladies, the cabinet ministers with their ladies, the great officers of state, &c. with the distinguished characters who will proceed to St. Regis.

The Hon. W. G. Bradley the American Agent, T. L. Tharks, esq. and Mr. Orne, the Secretary of the Board, are in town, and we perceive by the public papers, that the Hon. Ward Chipman, and Ward Chipman Jr. esq. Agents of His Britannic Majesty, are on their way, and may be hourly expected.

F. R. Hasler, esq. the American Astronomer, attached to the commission, is also, as we are informed, proceeding to this place upon the business of his appointment.

The splendid saloon in the queen's palace was determined on for the solemnization of the ceremony. An altar was covered with crimson velvet ornaments, and gold lace; and the gold sacramental plate from the Chapel Royal St. James', and Whitehall Chapel, part of which is very ancient, having belonged to king William. At a quarter past seven o'clock his serene highness went in state to the queen's palace, with his suite, in two of the prince regent's carriages, escorted by a party of life guards. The palace was illuminated with extra lamps. The company began to arrive at a quarter before seven and had all arrived before eight. At eight o'clock her majesty, with the different branches of the royal family, having arrived, the procession began to move from the private apartments; and, on entering the saloon, the queen took her station in a most splendid chair of state at the left of the altar. The different branches of the royal family took their stations according to their rank. The archbishop of Canterbury, and the bishop of London, appeared at the altar. Every thing being properly arranged for the ceremony, the lord Chamberlain introduced his serene highness, between the Dukes of Clarence and Kent. He was dressed in his general's uniform, and wore several of his orders, having twelve in the whole. The lord Chamberlain then introduced her royal highness, who was conducted to the altar by the dukes of Clarence and Kent. The duke of York appeared to give her away, the prince regent being absent, not only in consequence of not being quite recovered from a slight attack of the gout, but owing to a similar scene being fresh in his recollection in the marriage of his beloved daughter, the princess Charlotte. As soon as the ceremony was concluded, a signal was given from the palace to sergeant Clegg, who had received orders from the board of ordnance, with 41 pieces of cannon, to announce the joyous event. They were accordingly discharged. The tower guns were also discharged upon the occasion.

After the ceremony had concluded, her majesty received the congratulations of a number of distinguished characters upon the occasion. The bride and bridegroom then retired, and having taken off their splendid dresses, her serene highness appeared in a full dress, and her royal highness in a white satin pelisse, and a nun's veil, and left the palace in her royal highness's landau, with their united initials, for the prince regent's cottage at Windsor, where they will spend the honey-moon. In the evening several of the royal tradesmen illuminated their houses.

On the 6th of March last, the British army consisted of 135,592 effective non-commissioned officers and privates, and 6,849 officers.

On the 26th of March, a pitched battle was to be fought, near London, for 50 guineas, by a tinker and a canal navigator; large sums were depending in various bets.

The editor of the Steubenville (Ohio) Gazette, says, "The only chartered bank in the state, that refuses to redeem its paper, is the German Bank of Worcester."

Boundary Commissioners.—Yesterday saw the Burlington Sentinel of the 15th inst. the Hon. Thomas Barclay, his Britannic Majesty's Commissioner under the 5th article of the Treaty of Ghent, arrived here for the purpose of holding, with the Hon. C. P. Van Ness of this place, the Commissioner of the United States, a meeting of the Board under the Treaty.

It is understood that the Commissioners will meet this day, and will be detained here several days in making some preparatory arrangements, after which they will proceed to St. Regis.

The Hon. W. G. Bradley the American Agent, T. L. Tharks, esq. and Mr. Orne, the Secretary of the Board, are in town, and we perceive by the public papers, that the Hon. Ward Chipman, and Ward Chipman Jr. esq. Agents of His Britannic Majesty, are on their way, and may be hourly expected.

F. R. Hasler, esq. the American Astronomer, attached to the commission, is also, as we are informed, proceeding to this place upon the business of his appointment.

The English editors may well laugh at the absurdity of a report, that Louis the 18th has determined to adopt the name of Napoleon to succeed the Bourbon dynasty!

A few months since in Goochland county, in the state of Virginia, a jailor and his household, upon a profession of faith in Christ, received the ordinance of baptism. The household consisted of 9 children and a son-in-law. The youngest of the children was eleven years of age.

Salem, May 12.
Arrived brig Essex, Chase, 152 days from Batavia—sugar and coffee.

Extract from Cap. Chase's log book.

October 13, 1817, lat. 56° 30', long. 77° 50', east a sail on our larboard bow, who made every signal of distress, and showed Spanish colors, soon came along side, and we were requested to lay by until she sent her boat on board. We were then boarded by about 14 men, armed with cutlasses, &c. and one officer, in forming as they were from Cadiz, 14th July, bound into the China sea, (the officer could not tell what port) but said they were informed war was declared between America and Spain, in consequence of which he should take from the brig such articles as he thought fit. After a search fore and aft, and examining the ship's papers, they took away a number of articles, rigging, ducks, fowls, &c. and after detaining the brig about an hour, and being satisfied with robbing and treating the captain, officers, and people with the greatest contempt, they returned on board, saying they would give an order on the Spanish government for payment of the articles. The officer said the captain of his ship was Don Juan Hypolite, and the ship the Sylvia of Cadiz, but supposed to be fabrications. After the boat returned on board, we were wished a pleasant voyage by the pirates, with permission to proceed; stating their ship was manned with between four and five hundred men, and mounting 44 guns.

The Salisbury 58, admiral Douglass, arrived at Portsmouth from Jamaica on the 10th ult. having on board 800,000 dollars, and 150 cases of cochineal. It is stated in the Courier, that the day before he sailed, he was visited by a native 145 years of age, having walked fourteen miles to see the admiral, who was very much pleased by the compliment and brought home a correct likeness of this native. He had never been off the island, and gave some interesting particulars of the earthquake in 1687. Eng. paper.

From St. Eustatius.
We learn from Capt. Wilkinson, of the schooner Clarissa, which arrived at Norfolk from Eustatius, that the Patriot Admiral Brion with a part of his squadron, consisting of a heavy ship of war of about 22 guns, (his flag ship) formerly the British Emerald, a brig and several schooners, lay off St. E. from the 1st to 5th inst.—he had been several times in St. Eustatius. The remainder of his squadron was at the Five Islands. Capt. W. heard no news worthy of notice.

FLOUR was very high at St. Eustatius and St. Bartholomew, on the 5th inst.—but a very small quantity would stock the market, there being no trade at either place.—At St. Thomas, also, flour was in very good demand.

alexandria, May 30, 1818.

New York, May 4.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.—By the arrival of the regular trading and fast sailing ship Ann Maria, in 30 days from Liverpool, which put her off on the 26th of April—the editors of the Mercantile Advertiser have received London papers to the 24th of that month, four days later than before received. They are, however, unusually barren of intelligence.

Two of the vessels belonging to the expedition for the North Pole sailed from Sheerness on the 21st, the other two were to follow next day.

A motion for the repeal of the window tax in Ireland, was lost in the House of Commons, by a majority of 16.

A committee is appointed by the House of Commons to consider the expediency of repealing the usury laws.

The only new arrival from the United States is a Liverpool paper of the 25th, the Caledonia. Noyes, from New York, and the Good Return. Sails from Savannah. Sailed 22d, Amelie, for New Orleans.

American Stocks at London, April 21, Bank Shares nothing done; seven per cents 110 1-2; New Sixes 102 1-2 sellers.

British Stock, April 23, Three Per Consols 79 3-4.

Copy of a letter from Cropper, Benson & Co. dated Liverpool, April 25.

In consequence of the arrival of very large supplies of grain from London from various parts of the continent, our markets have been exceedingly dull, and wheat has fallen a full shilling per bushel, American cannot now be quoted at more than 12s. 6d. to 13s. 6d. per 70 lbs.—Flour is quite unsaleable, unless at a considerable reduction—5s. would be taken, but not more than 5s. is offered. Notwithstanding this depression, our ports will without doubt continue open. The average returns of the past 5 weeks, being 87s. 10d. a 88s. 10. a 90s. 5

Throughout the present week, but very little has been done in cotton; the sales of all descriptions being only 3200 bags, and Uplands may be considered a trifle lower. We quote them at 20 to 21 3 4d.—New Orleans, 21d to 2s 0 1 4d—Sea Islands, 3s. to 4s. Our imports during this week amount to about 5800 bags. In ashes or rice, there is at present but little doing—Naval stores rather lower—Back dull again.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.—By the arrival of the regular trading and fast sailing ship Ann Maria, in 30 days from Liverpool, which port she left on the 26th of April—the editors of the Mercantile Advertiser have received London papers on the 24th of that month, four days later than before received. They are, however, unusually barren of intelligence.

Two of the vessels belonging to the expedition for the North Pole sailed from Sheerness on the 21st, the other two were to follow next day.

Throughout the present week, but very little has been done in cotton; the sales (all descriptions being only 3200 bags, and Uplands may be considered a faring lower.
